There are 3,700 named streams and 15 major rivers that meander through 191,000 miles of Texas landscape. Their combined length is about 80,000 miles. These vastly important aquatic ecosystems play a major role in protecting water quality, preventing erosion, and providing nutrients and habitat for fish and wildlife. Along the way, water that eventually flows into seven major estuaries supports over 212 reservoirs, countless riparian habitats, wetlands, and terrestrial areas.

Each year Texas rivers and streams provide recreational opportunities to millions of Texans and visitors from all over the world. With deposits on beverage containers Texas water quality will be impacted in a positive way, for current and future consumers.
